Opposition to Foreign Aid Bill Fades

Washington, March 24 — (AP) — Prospects of a House fight to cut the $8,205,000,000 foreign aid bill faded today.

As the measure to pit American billions and military help against communism in China and part of Europe rolled into a second day's debate, Rep. Jonkman (R-Mich.) told a reporter he is for the full amount.

But the new program, he said, provides for an administrator free of State Department control.

Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis.) who teamed up with Jonkman for cuts in other bills, said he hasn't made up his mind on this one.

But members of the Foreign Affairs Committee noted that Smith had made no effort to trim the program while the committee was working on it. Both Smith and Jonkman are committee members, and both were scheduled for speeches during today's debate.

In addition, a Secretary of State Marshal was called to a closed door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for what members described as a review of the critical world situation (10 a. m., EST).

A Senate appropriations subcommittee took a look at a bill, passed by the House Monday, to provide $55,000,000 in additional stopgap aid for Italy, France and Austria.

President Truman has said it is urgent to keep supply lines to those countries filled until the new European program takes hold.

Italy has an election coming up April 18 in which Communists are trying to show strength.

DOROTHY DIX Home and Women

Dear Miss Dix: I have always taken pride in our home and have worked from morning until night to make it like a home, but my husband tells me that I do nothing at all and he only wishes that he could take life easy the way I do. That gets me down—as I have none of the modern household conveniences and have to launder twelve shirts a week and all the sheets and heavy bedspreads. I am often so tired I could drop, but if I ask him why he doesn't dry the dishes for me once in a while, he answers: "When the day comes when your work is as hard as mine, I'll wipe the dishes."

dar, the Senate is handling the foreign aid program in three separate packages, while the House is putting it all into one.

Fermented Cinnamon

Cinnamon is obtained by a process of fermentation. Bark is stripped from the cinnamon tree and allowed to ferment to loosen the inner bark, which is used as a spice.

He works in an office where he sits down all day, but I jump from job to job. He thinks I am inefficient because I work eight hours a day just doing my own housework. What do you think?

Answer: I agree with your husband that you must divide if you put in eight hours a day keeping a small house and cooking for two people, especially as you have no children to track in mud and scatter their clothes and playthings all over the place. Think this over and I believe you will realize that you make extra work for yourself by having no system.

I used to know a woman whose house was always in such a state of confusion that there was never a place to sit down, or even to move about without danger of falling over a chair or something that was likely to break your legs. There was never a meal on time in her home. The children's clothes were always in the tub just going to be washed, and she always had to dash out at the last minute to buy the groceries for supper, and she was the hardest worked woman of whom you ever heard.

Worked Haphazardly The reason of it was that she never finished a job. She would sweep a little on a floor, but not finish the room. She would half make a bed and then go off after something else. She would darn one stocking and leave the other with holes in it. Maybe that is the way you do your work and it explains why it takes you eight hours to do a two-hour job.

As for your husband telling you that he wishes he had a soft job like yours, that is what every man in the world says to his wife, and every man believes it, and that is because other people's troubles always seem lighter than our own.

It is a pity that husbands and wives can't swap jobs every now and then. Then they would find out what the other was up against. The woman who thinks it would be so nice to sit in an office all day and talk to people would have nervous prostration by night if she had to wrestle with all the problems of a home.

DISCOURAGED YOUTH Answer: You should decide what you want to do, not your mother. The Navy is the very place for you because it will give you the training and discipline that you evidently need. You will come out if it a different man.

lems that confront her husband. And any man who had to cook and wash and scrub making a home for his family, and be up half the night with a howling baby, would be calling for help before ten o'clock in the morning. It is only women, whose work is never done, who can stand the gaff.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have a small boy who has no playmates to play with and who is always begging for a brother near his own age. That being an impossibility in our case, how could I get in touch with a small child to whom I would give a good home and a mother's care and who would be a companion for my own son? I have heard that there are organizations that board children out in return for a good home. How could I contact such a place?

MRS. J. D. C. Answer: Apply to the Children's Bureau in your city and it will give you the information you wish. Of late years it has been found that children, taken as a whole, do far better when they are placed in private families than they do in asylums. So it is a common thing for youngsters to be boarded out in homes where there are other children of approximately the same age as the little boarders, and where they become part of the family life, under the supervision of women who are real mothers.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a man of 25. Single. Live with my parents. I cannot get along with my father, have no job and have been unable to get one. I am very anxious to join the Navy. What should I do? My mother objects.

Answer: You should decide what you want to do, not your mother. The Navy is the very place for you because it will give you the training and discipline that you evidently need. You will come out if it a different man.

She wasn't dead. She hadn't drowned. She knew that. Even though Rush had caught her and dragged her underneath the water she hadn't drowned. The reason she was so sure of that was that she was in a bed somewhere and when you were dead you didn't lie in beds. Or did you? She couldn't drag her eyelids open but she knew she was in one; she but she knew she was in one; she could feel the smoothness of the sheets under her fingers. Her head was on a pillow.

There were sounds around her. Activity of some sort. She couldn't identify it but it wasn't important. It didn't matter. Nothing mattered. She didn't even care a bit that she was alive. She'd just as soon be dead... inhaled... that weight on her chest again... she tried to move but the effort was too great... she floated off on a great wave.

She knew a smooth line in the clouds. She rolled from one to another and they were so soft, so enveloping. She wondered why she wasn't afraid of falling off because she was up so much higher than she'd ever been before. But she wasn't afraid at all. That was because she was on a crisis. She knew it was a crisis she was on because someone had said so. They said, "This is the crisis," and then they put out a hand and helped her on it and right away she started to climb. Up... up...

She was going along beautifully on the crisis until the little black cloud had to come along and spoil everything. They weren't bothering anybody, not anybody at all... and then the black cloud ran smack into them with a thump and spilled Ann off.

She started to cry. She could feel the tears trickling down her cheeks. The wetness of them unsealed her eyelids and she opened them.
She opened her eyes wide. She was in a very dim room and Laurie was there, sitting in a rocker beside her bed. For a minute she thought she was back in her room at Tophill and that it was Gay sitting there so quietly but it wasn't Gay. It was Laurie. And she wasn't at Tophill, she was at the cottage.

"Hi," she whispered to Laurie. "Hi," Laurie whispered back and she sounded awed as though it was unbelievable that Ann's eyes were open, that she had whispered "hi."
Laurie leaned forward in her chair very quietly, very carefully, as though she thought Ann might break if you touched her. "Don't talk," she said gravely. "You aren't strong enough to talk."

Ann closed her eyes again, because holding them open was such an awful effort and there was such a pounding inside her head, such a ringing in her ears. But she managed to smile as she closed her eyes because Laurie was there and she was so glad to see her.

She lay still for what was surely a long, long time and then she opened her eyes again and said, "Where—where is Rush?"
"He isn't here," Laurie said. "He wasn't there. Rush wasn't there."

She was still again for another long time and then she said, this time without opening her eyes, "Where—where is he?"
"He's gone," Laurie said. "Be quiet now. Rest. That's what the doctor says is important now, Ann. You're to lie still and do as you're told and rest."

Minutes passed. Hours, it seemed, and Ann said, the question forced from her, "Where—where did he go?"
Laurie didn't answer her. Maybe she hadn't heard her. Ann opened her eyes again. Laurie's eyes, so like her own, were watching her.

"Where did—Rush—go?" she asked painfully.
"Ann, look," Laurie said. "Enos is asleep over there in the chair. Can you turn your head enough to see? If you talk you'll wake him and he's terribly tired."

Of course she could turn her head. She did and Enos was there, sprawled out in the big leather easy chair, his feet on the ottoman. Dear Enos, she thought, faithful Enos. Always there when you need him. Of course she didn't want to wake him. She closed her eyes again and slowly drifted off.

And then Laurie was touching her, waking her up. Laurie was holding out a pill and a glass of water; Laurie was saying softly, "I'm a fine nurse, I am. I almost forgot your medicine. All you have to do is swallow this, Ann, and you can go to sleep again. For a long time. Here, I'll help you," and her firm hands went under the pillow, raising Ann up so that she could take her medicine.

She had just managed to get her mouth open when, from the doorway, a flat voice said, "All right, Laurie, that's enough! Put it down—PUT IT DOWN, I SAY!"
Laurie froze quite still and the old familiar terror washed over Ann and it was like the suspended action you see sometimes in movies when the camera stops...

"I SAID, PUT IT DOWN!"
And then Enos—who wasn't sleeping after all—got up very quietly and came over and got the glass out of Laurie's hand. He tried to get the pill too but Laurie fought like a wildcat and jerked and got away from him and put

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

"Shaking palsy" usually refers to a chronic disease of the nervous system better called Parkinson's disease or paralysis agitans. In this condition there is a muscular shaking or shivering involving principally the hands or arms, together with stiffness of muscular movement and a lack of expressiveness in the face.

There are two types of Parkinson's disease commonly described. One is that which develops in older people, more often in men than in women. Sometimes severe anxiety or shock brings on the symptoms but the real cause is probably something else.

The same symptoms may come also from infections, especially from epidemic encephalitis, a virus infection of the brain some times spoken of as an American sleeping sickness. When Parkinson's disease develops from this cause, it comes as frequently in women as in men.

Symptoms Start Early
Symptoms of both types begin gradually, usually in one hand. At first the shaking may not be present all of the time. Some loss of muscular strength and stiffness comes early. Muscular movements are started and become more difficult.

There may be periods of improvement of the palsy. Parkinson's disease is, however, a slow process and is likely to last many years. Pain is absent and the mental conditions is usually normal.

A reasonably active life with some work is good for most. However, strenuous exercise is usually taboo. People who have this condition should be especially careful to avoid fatigue. There is no absolutely satisfactory treatment, but there are the pill in her own mouth.

Ann thought resentfully. She isn't sick, what right has she to take my medicine? But then she realized suddenly that it was only another dream. And a pretty silly one, too.

SCOUTING TRAIL

A community scout meeting, arranged by the local American Legion post, was held at Blevins High School last night. Post commander, Ira Hendricks introduced the new Scoutmaster, Leo Willard. Plans were set up to complete registration of the troop at the regular troop meeting next week. Scoutmaster Willard announced that the troop would hold weekly meetings every Thursday night. According to post commander Hendricks, troop 77 has a very active program of scout activities for the coming charter year and expects to be one of the outstanding boy scout troops in the district.

Police Seek Motive in Slaying

San Francisco, March 24—(AP)—Police still sought a motive today in the strange case of the ice cream parlor murder.

They said they would file a wife murder charge against Dr. Bernard A. Cody, 52, if he lives. Inspector Thomas Cahill said Cody, in a conscious moment, gasped that he bludgeoned his wife, 43, McDevitt, 80, in their fashionable home—then crashed his speeding automobile into a stone wall.

Cody, well-to-do urologist, was so badly smashed—fractured skull and legs and internal injuries—that doctors dared not try surgery. Police hoped Mrs. McDevitt would be able to tell what occurred.

First Baptist Church last evening, March 23. The meeting was well attended with 36 present.

All five deans were represented and each deacon participated in stunts given at the close of the meeting.

The next Pack meeting for Cub Pack No. 90 will be Tuesday evening, April 27.

This evening, Wednesday, March 24, both cubs and scouts of Pack No. 90, are to be special guests of the sponsoring institution at the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hour at 7:15 p.m.

Latin Nations May Learn of Baseball

Columbus, O., March 24—(AP)—American baseball is about to extend its helping hand to the West Indies and the Latin Americas.

Robert L. Finch, soft-spoken but forceful publicity chief of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (the minors), takes off Sunday from New York on a flying jaunt which may bring the "down under" loops into organized baseball.

Following his personal talks with the league chiefs, Finch will return to Havana for April 8 and 9 conferences with representatives of all the Caribbean, Central and South American circuits interested in setting up a post-season championship series.

Meanwhile, in 438 cities from Vancouver, B. C., Canada, on the north, to Havana, Cuba, on the south, and from San Francisco on the west to Quebec in the east, are league pennant races.

in the hour preceding the Monday night slaying, in conscious moments she related that after she and the Codys ate ice cream, she went in to her bedroom. She heard her daughter scream, ran to investigate, and was struck with a lead pipe.

Italians Honor 320 Who Died at Hands of Nazis

Rome, March 24—(AP)—Hundreds of Italians gathered at the Ardeatine caves outside Rome today for a solemn memorial tribute to the 320 Italian civilians who were massacred there by the Germans four years ago.

An anniversary mass was celebrated by a Roman Catholic priest. The Italians were killed in reprisal for a partisan attack on German S. S. troops during the war.

Officials and representatives of the Allied governments, including U. S. Ambassador James C. Dunn, were present.

Huge piles of flowers were draped on the long rows of coffins on the floor of the caves, which now are a national shrine. A tiny lamp on a candle glowed on each coffin, and beside each was a picture of the victim it held.

Three German generals have been convicted for the massacre. Death sentences of all three have been commuted to life imprisonment. They are field Marshal Albert Kesselring, Lt. Gen. Eberhard Von Mackensen and Lt. Gen. Kurt Maeltzer.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, March 24—(AP)—Stocks made small headway in an erratic market today.

A downward drift in early dealings was followed by a noon rally that produced the best speed of the day and sent selected steels and rails ahead fractions to around 2 points. These gains were widely trimmed or turned into losses later, although some oils were in demand. Despite occasional slow-downs, total transactions ran to around 1,000,000 shares.

Railroad bonds improved.

NEW YORK COTTON

New York, March 24—(AP)—Cotton futures were irregular in moderately active dealings today. Fairly active trade buying credited to domestic and Canadian mill accounts rallied prices to more than $1 a bale before the market reacted partially on increased hedge selling and profit taking.

New crop deliveries lagged on the advance, reflecting the possibility of a substantial increase in cotton plantings this season, stimulated by rising prices.

New York, March 24—(AP)—Cotton futures rallied sharply in the final hour of trading today as leading spot firms purchased old crop deliveries. Offerings were scarce on the upturn and prices gained almost $2 a bale.

The buying was attributed to covering for mill accounts.

Futures closed $1.00 to $2.50 a bale higher than the previous close.

May high 34.80 — low 34.20 — last 34.50 up 45 to 50

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, March 24—(AP)—Grains held around previous closing levels on the board of trade today.

Prices opened a little lower, rallied a cent or more, and then turned downward again late in the session. Trading was not active and the main feature was the relative firmness of the May wheat future.

Buying of May wheat at times was traced to cash houses, brokers who ordinarily represent flour mills and previous short sellers. But the grain was offered freely on the upturn and prices did not rise sharply.

Corn and oats simply followed the action of wheat.

Wheat closed 3-8-2 1-4 higher. May $2.20 1-2-4, corn was 1-4 lower to 1-4 higher. May $2.16 3-4-12, oats were 12-78 lower. May $1.10 10-14, and soybeans were 1 to 3 cents higher, May $3.46.

Cash wheat was called nominal 1/4 higher with the futures today although no sales were reported; receipts 10 cars. Corn was higher; basis unchanged to a cent higher; bookings 4,000 bushels; receipts 29 cars. Oats were unchanged; basis unchanged; shipping sales nine cars. Soybeans receipts were two cars.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

New Orleans, March 24—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here today on trade buying and short covering. Closing prices were very steady, $1.00 to $2.35 a bale higher.

Catholic Cardinal Denounces Communism

Vatican City, March 23—(AP)—The sharpest, most explicit condemnation of Communism to come from any ranking Catholic prelate in Italy yet was made public here today.

Looking toward Italy's vital parliamentary elections April 18, Cardinal Tisserant disclosed he had told priests and parishioners in his archdiocese:

"I think that no menace so grave as atheistic Communism has ever confronted Christian civilization."

Young Wife of Minister Raped, Killed

Wells, Nev., March 23 — (P) — The pretty, young wife of a Presbyterian minister was raped and viciously bludgeoned to death with a rolling pin by an itinerant who asked for food, Constable Homer Murphy said today.

Sheriff C.L. Smith of Elko county termed the slaying "the most horrible crime I have ever come across."

Medical examination showed the woman was five months pregnant. The Rev. Richard Morning, 27, found the body of his wife, Bilee Rahe, 22, about midnight on his return home from nearby Montello. Her hands and legs were tied to her bed with electric cord. A towel was fastened tightly around her throat. A sheet was wrapped around her head.

The Morning's eight-months old son was on the bed beside his mother. He was unharmed. Murphy said the woman had been beaten with the rolling pin until it broke. The blood-covered weapon was found in the bedroom.

Authorities throughout Nevada began a search for the itinerant, described as about 20, about five feet four inches in height, with a pockmarked face. A man similarly described had begged money from several persons here.

Investigators pieced together this preliminary story of Mrs. Morning's death — a crime which shocked this little desert town of 1,000 persons near the Nevada-Utah border.

The itinerant appeared at the house next door at about 4:30 p.m. yesterday. He asked where the Morning's lived. From there he went to a tavern in town and tried to cash a check signed by Rev. Morning. Where he got the check was not determined. The bartender refused to cash it.

The man then went to Mrs. Morning's home and asked for food. Mrs. Morning packed a lunch — found on a kitchen table — before she was raped and finally beaten to death.

Her husband had gone to Montello, 20 miles east, for Sunday night church services. He stayed over to preach again last night.

Officer Claims Self-Defense for Striking Lawyer

Little Rock, March 23 — (P) — Arkansas Police Sgt. R. E. Brown testified today he struck Sam E. Montgomery, North Little Rock lawyer, in self defense at Hot Springs a year ago.

Brown appeared before the state Fiscal Control Board which took up Montgomery's claim for $25,000 for alleged injuries suffered at

Finns Promised at Least One More Free Election

Helsinki, March 23 — (P) — The Finns had a promise from their president today that next July's parliamentary elections will be free.

President Juho K. Paasikivi, at 78 Finland's strong man and her oldest active statesman, pledged that the will of the people will be the deciding factor. He said there would be no war in the near future.

For the first time in recent critical weeks, during preliminary discussions on the proposed Russian-Finnish friendship pact, Paasikivi granted an interview to four American reporters yesterday.

The "old man in the palace" — a term Finns use affectionately — talked with optimism about the future. He said he thought there might be a long period of cold war, "but peoples are not so likely to be induced to begin a new war."

Red Committees Attend Sabotage Schools in Austria

Vienna, March 23 — (P) — Communist action committees are attending sabotage schools in a Russian-occupied suburb of Vienna, a highly placed Austrian source said today.

Austrian interior ministry officials said they know there was a school but did not know what was being taught there.

Action committees were the instruments used by Communists in their coup in Czechoslovakia last month.

the hands of Brown. The lawyer was not present.

The police officer said Montgomery had abused him at the Oaklawn Race track and attempted to attack him as the lawyer was being escorted to jail. He said he used a "police slapper."

Montgomery was docketed on charges of being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest.

The claim was one of 25 for consideration of the board today. No decision was announced immediately.

The board formally approved purchase of $300,000 par value two percent U. S. Treasury bonds with money from the highway debt service reserve fund. The action was authorized at a recent board meeting.

Baylor No Match for Kentucky

New York, March 24 —(AP)—Can Kentucky beat Bartlesville's famed Oilers in the Olympic basketball trials?

The question may be a bit pre-mature but cage customers who saw the wonderful Wildcats from the Kentucky rout Baylor, 50-42, for the NCAA championship last night already were discussing the possible duel of these two mighty titans. And the fans were anticipating an individual clash between two great centers, Alex Groza, 6-7 Kentucky pivot, and the Oilers seven-foot Bob Kurland.

Before the twin can meet, Ken- tucky must win two games in its bracket of the trials while the Oilers have to do the same in the independent part of the journey. Both are heavily favored to come through for the final in Madison Square Garden, Wednesday, March 31.

As a result of Kentucky's one-sided triumph, here's the way the pairings shape up for the Saturday openers:

2 p. m. (EST)—Oakland Bittners vs. Denver Nuggets.
3:45 p. m. —New York U. vs. Baylor.

8 p. m. —Oilers vs. the Prospect Park (Brooklyn) YMCA, National champions.

9:45 p. m. —Kentucky vs. Louis- ville, NAEP champions.

On Monday, the semi-finals will be held with the two college victors opposing each other. The two sur- viving independents also will clash.

With Groza leading the way, Kentucky ran up a big early edge on Baylor and won handily, 50-42. Alex paced the Wildcats with 14 points and controlled the back- boards.

The 21-year-old junior played superbly in all three games of the NCAA tourney and his peerless per- formance earned with the award as the outstanding player in the meet.

Groza, however, has been matched against smaller men throughout. In Kurland he not only will face a taller opponent but one who has also had plenty of experi- ence.

Bill Henderson saw AAU ball on a western trip early in the season and his own team defeated the Bittners, 57-42, in December.

"I think the AAU champs will beat them. Kentucky won't be able to play as rough as they did against us," Henderson said. "The Oilers are pretty husky too."

Cage Group to Discuss New Rule Changes

New York, March 24 —(AP)—Pro- posed rule changes for next sea- son will be considered Thursday and Friday by the National Basket- ball Committee of the United States and Canada.

The committee is meeting here in conjunction with the National Association of Basketball Coaches, the American Olympic Basketball committee, and other groups.

On Friday the A.O.B.C. will de- cide how to pick the 14 members of the team which will represent the United States in the summer Olympic games at London.

The proposed rule changes have been generally favored in a ques- tionnaire to coaches and others. The national basketball committee of the U. S. and Canada includes representatives of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, the National A. A. U., the Y. M. C. A. and the candidates.

Principal rule changes suggested include:

Permitting coaches to talk with players at the bench during time- out, abolishing the rule requiring substitutes to report directly to the referee or umpire; allowing the same pivot foot leniency for start- ing a dribble as for passing and shooting; requiring players who have committed fouls to raise a hand; limiting player numbers to digits no greater than five to facilitate signals of officials; moving all jump balls to the nearest retaining circle; limiting all intermissions other than be- tween halves, to one minute (affecting high school quarters and official time-outs).

Magnolia A & M Falls Before Title Holders

Springfield, Mo., March 24 —(AP)—A fast Jackson, Mich., team emerged today as a threat to Compion College's chances of re- taining the National Junior Col- lege Basketball Tournament cham- pionship.

The Jackson Junior College team scored the first upset in the tourna- ment's opening round yesterday, ousting General City Business In- stitute of Syracuse, N. Y., 70-55. It was the Syracuse team's second defeat in 28 games this season.

The Compion (Calif.) team, which beat a strong Magnolia, Ark., A. and M. squad, 61-51, yester- day, plays Duluth, Minn., to- night. Duluth whipped Bluefield, Va., 57-50.

Today's schedule (Central Stand- ard Time) will include:

6:30 —Magnolia A. & M., vs. Bluefield, Va. (consolation bracket).

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

New York, March 24 —(AP)—The big project on the book for the National Basketball Coaches Asso- ciation is the filming of a movie that will show approved rules in- terpretations "on which we all agree." . . . The title probably will be "the unfinished movie." There still aren't too many signs of agree- ment.

Shorts And Shells
Jack Gardner and Duggie Julian, whose Kansas State and Holy Cross teams played off for third place in the N.C.A.A. basketball tourney, agree that a team that is eliminat- ed should be shipped right home.

The kids aren't interested after they've beaten the coaches maintain. . . . Bob Homanen re- veals that his St. Louis Cardinals will pay a $50,000 bill for sea-fair this season. . . . Curly Lamiguita, who resurrected his own version of the "winged T" formation for the Green Bay Packers last fall, is having a quiet chuckle over the way other football coaches are going for it. . . . Of course, the Packers did increase their yardage 43 per cent and scoring 74 per cent over the previous season, but may- be the players had something to do with that.

Fancy Fencing
When Duggie Julian encountered his tournament conqueror, Adolph Rupp, at the basketball coaches convention the other day, the Holy Cross coach remarked: "I'm going to introduce a resolution requiring Kentucky to play in both tourna- ments every year so the team won't have a chance to rest." . . . Without even wincing, Rupp of- fered: "And I'm going to introduce one that when a coach gets seven players from one town, he has to begin looking somewhere else."

Dote All, Brothers
Gaynel Tinsley, Louisiana State's new head football coach, en- tered the university on a basket- ball scholarship but never played a minute on the hardwood for LSU.

Ticket prices for the Loui- Walcott fight next June have bec- set at $50 tops. . . . Does that mean Mike Jacobs and Co. expect it to be only half as fragrant as the $100 Louis-Billy Conn affair?
